cer field and from that hour until the last train was about to leave the park, there was something doing in soccer circles. Five teams competed, Bonaccord B, Rangers B, Rangers A, Bonaccord C, and Rangers C, and in the finals Rangers C proved their claim to superiority by defeating Bonaccord B, 1 to 0. Just back of the money was the Bonaccord B team and prize money of $25 to the winning outfit and $10 to the runners-up was distributed at once. As nearly all of the best soccer talent in the state participated in the elimination matches, there is a reasonable conclusion to be drawn that the surviving team may claim the state championship. Robert Mutch and William Thom acted as referees and Joseph D. Will was the time-keeper. A large crowd manifested its loyalty to soccer football by watching closely the movements of the players in each game.

Below is given a recapitulation of all other matches and competitions. If anything, the quality of athletic feats was above the ordinary, and enthusiasm in the outcome of each match never lagged. Samuel Gerrard and Alex. Milne were the judges, and William McDonald the referee. Union rules governed all contests.

The gate prizes for ladies, donated by ex-Alderman Alex. Milne, were awarded to G. Geake (23), and Margaret Carle (22). The trophy in the dart-throwing contest, a $6 pipe given by George M. Marston, went to Barclay Scott, who made the best score during the day. In the grand competition, the Napanee kitchen cabinet, presented by Clansman A. W. Badger, went to Chief George C. Cormack. A prize of $5 donated by the Spanish-American war veterans for excellence in marksmanship went to William Murray.

The committee in charge of the outing and games worked diligently to put the big picnic on a par with past clan picnics and to them is due a good bit of credit. The committee consisted of Chief George C. Cormack, Secretary Alex. Edwards, William Stephens, Adam Sangster, George Greighton, Peter Thom, Robert Patterson, Jr., Grover Cayton, Albert Hurry, Charles Barry, and James Rothnie.

During the past week, the aldermanic property committee has been advertising for bids and it is expected that a number of tenders for the lease of the theatre will be opened. Because the time is rapidly approaching when anyone who leases the theatre for a year must look to his bookings, an effort will be made to select at once a satisfactory lessee from the tenders.

A team with a driver whose regard for poxy beds and nestly kept laws on Eastern avenue appears to have been a negligible quantity was being allowed to wander at random through that neighborhood this afternoon when Deputy Sheriff S. H. Unwin, who came over from Marshfield this morning to get his teeth fixed and who was visiting his sister while in the city, seized the horse by the bridle and started for police headquarters. He was met at the Prospect street corner by Officer David Henderson, who had been looking for a man described in telephone messages that came into police headquarters as a drunken driver. The man offered no objection to accompanying the officers until he reached the station. At the entrance he put up a determined resistance but was overpowered and locked up. Two bottles of Old Colonial brandy were removed from his person. The man said he lived in upper Granville but wasn't very anxious to furnish his name.

PLAYGROUND NOTES.

The Big Idea Behind the Public Playground.

[Written by a public-spirited citizen in a larger city.]

As a man of affairs—a busy man—I rather resented being chosen as a member of the playground committee.

I could not see why I should have been asked to devote my valuable time for the benefit of the children I did not know—and therefore could not love or cherish.

But there was enough "public spirit" in me to prompt me to accept.

I am glad I did.

To-day, on my way to my office, I passed one of our playgrounds, and heard the shouts of laughter—wholesome, healthy, full-souled laughter.

The little ones were not running the dusty streets; they were not absorbing the idle chatter of idle boys and girls.

The busy mind has no room for evil thoughts.

I stood and watched those youngsters until the sun was starting on her daily western journey. Fascination seemed to glue me to the spot. Flashed across my mind, like a panorama, was a vivid impressionistic life of these healthy, happy children at each successful step in their later life, and I could not help but feel that the mind and body training they received on that playground apparatus was largely responsible for their inevitable later day success. That to me was the big idea behind the public playground.
